The Way WE Were in San Diego

Meet Author--
Richard Crawford

Richard Crawford, Union Tribune columnist and Supervisor of Special Collections at the San Diego Public Library, will be discussing his latest work—The Way We Were in San Diego. Crawford, an authority on San Diego history, recounts the dusty frontier days of the city. His stories, drawn from long-forgotten headlines will amaze and entertain you. From a visit by Harry Houdini to Purity League raids on the infamous red-light district, there is much to learn about San Diego's colorful past. Join us for an interesting discussion and learn about the way we really were in San Diego.
